Patrick Lewis received his Doctor of Philosophy in Organic Chemistry at Louisiana State University in 2000. After graduating from LSU, Patrick worked as a research chemist for DuPont for a year before joining the USPTO in 2001. Since joining the USPTO, Patrick has primarily examined carbohydrate-based patent applications. He is currently serving as an assistant outreach coordinator for the Elijah J. McCoy Midwest Regional Office. In this role, he facilitates stakeholder engagement and organizes or participates in events that aim to educate the public on intellectual property matters and resources.
